Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Butter-Making on the Farm It will not be denied by any one who is at all familiar with dairy conditions in British Columbia that there is great room for improvement in the quality of a large proportion of our farm-made butter. If all the dairy butter was of finest quality the increase in consumption would be very great, and better average prices would prevail for all butter, and thus a tremendous impetus would be given the dairy industry as a whole. Creamery butter, from the fact that it has been made by those who have been well instructed in the art of buttermaking in well-equipped, sanitary creameries, is of uniform grade and quality, and therefore has a ready sale at top prices. The creamery butter-maker is supplied with a full outfit of utensils and apparatus, which enable him to recover a maximum quantity of butter from the cream. He gives careful attention to the ripening of the cream, so as to develop desirable flavours, and proper temperatures are carefully maintained during the ripening process and at the time of churning. No guesswork is allowed at any stage of the process, and the butter-maker who knows his business sees to it that the butter is carefully and thoroughly worked, packed in a neat and attractive way, and kept in clean and sanitary storage until marketed. The case is different, however, with those who make butter on the farms, where a large part of the butter of this Province is still being made. There is a great lack of proper equipment in the way of proper dairy-houses, utensils, apparatus, and cooling facilities, and a general lack of...
