Grant) declared, that the power not having been executed, the money could not be raised. Upon an appeal, Lord Erskine said, the general 12 Ve. 206. question was, whether the sum of 2,000/. which Sir J. C. had power to raise, was to be considered as assets. The first ground upon which that might be maintained was, that jus disponendi was to be considered as property itself. If there was no case directly in point, the result of the authorities was, that a general power of disposition, not restrained as to the objects or the mode, was in effect property: The distinction between power and property being, that the former was subject to some restraint, either as to the objects, or the mode of disposition; the...
