Bibliogov, United States, 2013. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 246 x 189 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.In response to a congressional request, GAO compared the compensation of federal employees, who collectively bargain for wages, with General Schedule and Federal Wage System employees. GAO also examined the history and extent of collective bargaining for wages in state and local governments. Federal employees who bargain for pay usually are paid more than their General Schedule and Federal Wage System counterparts. In 96 percent of comparisons covering 17 occupations, GAO found that collective bargaining employees earned from $491 to $13,583 more in fiscal year 1981 than their Federal Wage System counterparts. In addition, postal letter carriers covered by the Postal Service bargaining agreement were paid $5,490 more in fiscal year 1981 than their General Schedule counterparts. Over the past 9 years, the cumulative percentage of pay increases for nonpostal collective bargaining employees has been comparable to Federal Wage System employees increases but has far outpaced General Schedule employees pay raises. Because of differences among the pay systems, agencies are having difficulty preserving a pay differential between General Schedule supervisors and nonpostal collective bargaining and Federal Wage System...
